MERCHANTS HAVE SPLENDID SESSION

There was an unusually large attendance at the regular monthly meeting of the Daly City Merchants' Association held in the City Hall last Wednesday evening, Andrew Vireno presiding.

A delegation from the newly organized Daly City Post No. 410 of the American Legion was present and was cordially received. Dr. F. P. Callsen, spokesman for the delegation, offered the co-operation and assistance of the men of the Post, a sincere, energetic body of men ready to help promote the welfare of the community.

The committee on entertainment reported that they had secured Oak Cove Park, near San Mateo, for the annual picnic to be held on August 30, 1931. After much discussion it was decided to give the committee full power to act in the management of the grounds, the automobiles, and the crowd at the picnic. The Merchants' picnic last year will long be remembered by the people of Daly City as a happy event, and efforts will be made to make the one this year even greater and more enjoyable.

Fifty dollars was donated to the Daly City baseball nine with which to buy baseballs and bats for the coming season.

Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilmen Arthur Dalton and A. J. Bodien, and John J. Fahey, Andrew Vireno and W. H. Clay, members of the joint committee on widening Mission street, made reports of the committee meeting with the State Highway Commission at Sacramento on March 26, and it was generally conceded that the work of the committee had been highly satisfactory.

The committee was courteously receved by the Commission at Sacramento, at which time Mayor H. H. Smith, as the spokesman for the committee, made a splendid appeal for the necessary funds to finance the work. He was followed by Engineer Clyde Healey of San Francisco, Supervisor Andrew Gallagher, and Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey, of San Mateo county, each of whom made an impressive talk in favor of the proposition.

At first it looked as though there was no money to be had at the present time, but it was stated that as none of the contracts for highway work and improvement had been let, it was highly probable that when bids are received they will be for less, in some cases, than the amount allocated by the Highway Commission, thus leaving a surplus which can be used for our work on Mission street and San Jose avenue.

The people of Daly City and adjoining communities should feel grateful to the men who have given their time and energy to make this improvement possible. There will be a great boom in Daly City when this work is completed so that permanent bulding can be done.

Special credit is due the officials of San Francisco, Supervisors Andrew J. Gallagher, Victor Canepa and Warren Shannon; Supervisor Thomas L. Hickey of San Mateo county; Engineer Clyde Healey of San Francisco; the officials of Daly City, Mayor H. H. Smith, Councilmen Bodien, Dalton and Twesten; the officials of the Daly City Merchants' Association, Andrew Vireno, John J. Fahey, and W. H. Clay; Joseph Garibaldi and Angelo Olcese of the Colma Chamber of Commerece; President A. B. Frank of the Excelsior Merchants' Association; President Arthur Holl of the Mission Street Merchants' Association, and Fred A. Steinman, chairman of the committee.

There will be another meeting of the joint committee in the near future to consder further plans.

The next regular meeting of the Daly City Merchants' Association will be held at the City Hall auditorium on Wednesday May 6. All merchants, business and professional men are welcome at these meetings.

W. H. CLAY, Recording Secretary.

K. C.'s ATTEND ANNUAL COMMUNION SERVICES

The annual Palm Sunday exercises of the Knights of Columbus of Daly City were observed last Sunday at the 7:30 A. M. mass in our Lady of Perpetual Help Church. One hundred members attended mass and received Holy Communion, after which a post-communion breakfast was served in the Eagles Hall. This was followed by an interesting and instructive address by Father James Donohoe, Chaplain of Daly City Council K. of C., on early California history and the missions. He was followed by Jas. J. O'Malley, Deputy Grand Knight, of San Mateo Council K. of C., who spoke on the good of the order in general.

OLD GLORY POST HAS AN AUXILIARY

The members of Old Glory Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, No. 2044, held their second regular meeting at Masonic Hall, Daly City, last Friday, with an attendance of record proportions.

A slogan of "Where Vet Meets Vet" would be in order for this popular Post, as the hall was filled to overflowing by members and their friends. It was with a great deal of difficulty that Commander Nesby brought the meeting to order for the transaction of the regular business, for bedlum was certainly loose. This is true Post spirit—whole-hearted comradrie. Battles were refought; joys and sorrows of the past were recalled vividly in ardent discussion. Each veteran was asked to arise and give his name and outfit. By this means many comrades of the same division were brought together.

New recruits were brought in to swell the membership half again its original size. It was one big gang of Daly City's war veterans.

Comrades were elected to the posts that had not been filled. Comrade Lasky was elected Post Advocate; Comrade Bedford, officer of the day, to replace Comrade Lewis, who resigned. Comrade Childs was appointed Sentinel. Comrades Anderson, Colman, DeVanie, Granucci, Lewis, Collins and Albright were appointed to the ways and means committee, and Comrade Callaghan was made inner guard and Comrade Lukouicz was made bugler.

After the business of the meeting was attended to there was a period allowed for general discussion for the good of the order, and many fine ideas were advanced for future entertainment and Post benefits.

The Ladies' Auxiliary made this night their institution night, their meeting being held in the adjoining hall. There was a large attendance, many officials from other auxiliaries being among the guests. The newly elected officers were installed. Mrs. Laura Schertle, the Department President of California and Nevada, was present. She conducted the meeting and installed the new officers.

The new President of Old Glory Auxiliary No. 2044, being a transfer member from Jacob Smith Auxiliary No. 83, of San Francisco, selected the members from there to act as officers. After the meeting these officers were presented with a bouquet in appreciation of their work.

The following officers were elected: President, Florence Nesby; Senior Vice-President, Ethel Dorn; Junior Vice-President, Agnes Bailey; Chaplain, Doris Pangburn; Treasurer, Charlotte Collins; Secretary, Louise Crowley; Trustee for six months, Blanche Allen; Guard, Mary Robertson; Color Bearers, Marie McGlumphy and Louise Refatti. They were welcomed into the Post with a large basket of flowers, and after both meetings closed there was a real "spread" put on by the ladies, including sandwiches, cake an coffee. Towards the stroke of twelve the Vets and their wives departed for their homes with that happy smile that comes with an evening well spent.

The meetings of Old Glory Post No. 2044, Veterans of Foreign Wars, are held every second and fourth Friday of each month, in Masonic Hall.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN ANSWERS LAST CALL

Some sixty thousand strong, they marched to the sea—Union soliders commanded by General Tecumseh Sherman—tearing up communications and cutting telegraph wires, forcing General Lee to the inevitable surrender, away back there 66 years ago, in the days of the Civil war.

And with Sherman marched Oscar (Dick) Warren Stier, then a young man of 20, who left the plow in its Iowa loam to battle for the Union. Last Tuesday funeral services were held in Oakland for the old veteran who died Sunday at the age of 86, after spending 56 years of his life in California.

Oscar Warren Stier was a private in Company B, 13th Iowa Infantry, during the Civil war, and when Lee surrendered and the war came to an end, it left him unsettled and restless, and full of the urge to "go west." At 30 he was in California, first in Mendocino county, then in San Jose, and for the last 24 years of his life, in Oakland. He was a stock buyer for years, widely known to Central and Northern California farmers until his retirement some time ago.

He leaves two sons, J. F. and W. H. Stier, of Oakland, and Mrs. Walter White, of Theta avenue, Daly City, to mourn his passing. Services were held at 1:30 P. M. Tuesday, from the James Taylor parlors, Fifteenth and Jefferson streets, Oakland.

CONYERS PITCHES TWO HIT CONTEST

By HAROLD MARTIN

Displaying consistent batting ability behind "Pop" Conyer's effective pitching, the Walworth California nine snowed the Daly City Merchants under a 19 to 2 score last Sunday, on the Jefferson high school diamond.

For their initial test the local team faced one of the best amateur chuckers in San Francisco. Conyers allowed them two hits, struck out eight, and issued five walks. Not a single Merchant crossed the home plate until the last inning, and only two men had reached second before that frame.

Al Toole, Daly City chucker, showed the effects of a three months lay-off. He gave a masterly exhibition for three innings, and then through a series of well placed hits, coupled with seven errors, the visitors kept the paths hot.

Phelps, second baseman, led the Walworth's bat assault with three hits in six trips to the plate. The first of these blows was a home run. Other California men that made their presence felt with three timely hits were Callagy, Nello, and Conyers.

Several of the Merchants' players gave a good account of themselves despite this setback. Albrecht, left fielder, displayed mid-season form while making four putouts, two of which were sparkling plays. Other outstanding prospects were Cameron, catcher, and Walsh, first baseman.

Undaunted by defeat, Manager Ed Cavagnaro is looking forward to the best season yet. He will have several new players signed for the next contest, including a pitcher and third baseman. "With these positions fortified and a month's practice, Daly City will be tough to beat," is Ed's decision.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ENJOY HIKE

On Saturday, March 21, the Camp Fire Girls of Daly City went on a hike and weinie roast at Fleishacker's pool. They hiked out to the pool and then went swimming. Later a weinie roast was enjoyed by the hungry hikers. The girls returned home early in the evening, tired but happy. At the last meeting it was decided to hold a whist party some time in April. The date was not definitely decided upon. Be sure and get your ticket to the annual whist given by the Camp Fire Girls.

GOVERNOR URGES CAREFUL DRIVING

An appeal to the people of the state to co-operate in improving the traffic accident siuation was issued last Saturday by Governor James Rolph, Jr., in the form of an open letter endorsing the activities of the California Committee on Public Saftey.

"The annual list of traffic deaths and injuries is a challenge to our intelligence and our sense of civic duty," the Governor declared. "We in California live in a land that is recognized the world over for the attractions it offers the motor tourist. Our great system of highways is second to none. Our motor vehicle registration is higher per capita than that of any other state. We have a proportionately greater concern in the question of safety."

Referring to the work of the Committee on Public Saftey, the Governor declared that the organization has made great progress in impressing principles of safety upon motorists and pedestrians. The continued success of these efforts, he stated, depends almost entirely upon the degree of public response.

The committee is composed of representatives of more than forty civic organizations and state government departments interested in the traffic safety problem. Statewide campaigns are conducted throughout the year, each month being devoted to a particular traffic regulation.

ANNUAL FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD APRIL 25-26

The Burlingame-San Mateo Garden and Flower Club will hold its fourth annual spring flower show on April 25 and 26, at the Peinisula Avenue school, El Camino Real and Pennsula avenue, San Mateo.

One group of exhibits will be for students of grammar or high schools, exhibiting as schools, as individuals, or as organized groups such as Boy Scouts, Girls Scouts, or Camp Fire Girls. This section will include wild flowers, cut shrubs and trees with named varieties, miniature gardens, cut flowers, potted plants, pressed flower booklets, floral art prints, native ferns, models of various kinds made of flowers.

There will be a special display for amateur gardeners, for wives and daughters of professional gardeners, and for estates..

Exhibits must be in place by 11 A. M. on Saturday, April 25. Trophies and ribbons will be awarded for the best exhibits by amateurs and clubs, while cash awards will be given to the best displays of professionals.

SUNRISE SERVICE ON LOCAL HILLS

Easter morning has been ushered in in years past with an early morning Easter service, and this year at 7 o'clock Easter morning an outdoor service of song and praise will be held on the Daly City hills located about the top of Peoria street. Local Methodists and Presbyterians will have charge of the service, but a special invitation is given to all to attend. The 7 o'clock hour will allow those attending the service on Mount Davidson to return in time for the Daly City service.

LEGION AUXILIARY CLASS INITIATION

San Mateo and San Francisco county units of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the American Legion held a meeting and class initiation in Memorial Hall, at the Civic Auditorium in San Francisco on Tuesday evening, March 31. When the Daly City delegation of Legionaires and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary appeared on the scene the orderlies were hard put to find enough chairs to accommodate them, but eventually plenty were provided.

The initiatory work was splendidly exemplified and was very impressive. The Daly City unit was commended on the wonderful showing they have made in their acquisition of members.

Several musical numbers were very creditable rendered, and the speakers of the evening had an unusual flow of eloquence.

Particularly noticeable toward the close of the proceedings were certain individuals who vowed that never again would they stand in line for chow, but that is precisely what they did, and not only that, they even stood in line for "seconds." It is also to be noted that some of the ladies present were apt pupils in learning how it is done. At eleven thirty P. M. the crowd broke up and left for home with a deeper appreciation of the work the organization is trying to do.

Daly City Post No. 410 will hold its next regular meeting at the Daly City Hall this Friday evening, April 3. Be sure to attend, as several important matters are on the calendar, to be taken care of at this meeting.

The Ladies' Auxiliary had a rousing meeting at 35 Woodrow street on Friday evening, March 27. A number of new members were signed up, and their charter is on the way.

Mrs. Holt, the district organizer, was presented a beautiful bouquet in appreciation of her efforts in behalf of the unit. At 11:15 the meeting adjourned and refreshments were served, and some refreshments they were.

P. S. Did you get that recipe?

Did you know that there are over ten thousand Legion Posts, scattered in every part of the United States and throughout the world? Think it over.

If you have any problems about your "bonus," consult our Post Commander, F. H. Dannenberg, 143 Winchester street, whether you are a member of the Legion or not. He has all the data and may save you considerable confusion.

From the "Rhymes of a Lost Battalion Doughboy" we glean the following:

"COOTIES"

When you're standing at attention,
And the "cooties" duck below;
Just the way they come for seconds,
Ain't it h—? Well, I'll say so!

In the lines the boys were diggin'
With their shovels to get in;
While the "cootie" rigged his digger
With his rig for digging in.

At the front the Majors had 'em,
Every Captain raised his share;
But there sure was h— a-poppin'
When a "Buck" has one to spare.

Now every nation has them,
The great ones and small;
But for "tame" and "naughty" cooties,
Rainy France, she leads them all.

TANFORAN RACES DRAW BIG CROWDS

Under bright March skies with typical racing weather, the Pacific Coast Breeders Association launched its spring racing meet at the San Bruno oval, Tanforan, last Tuesday. More than 10,000 fans gathered at the big track for the opening session, which was featured by the Inaugural Handicap. Eight events were offered the first day, with seven on the program for every day thereafter in the twenty-one day meeting.

Only one interruption will occur during this meeting, and that will be Good Friday, when the association will close the track for the day. The following day another feature race, the Tanforan Spring Special, worth more than $5,000 to the winner, will be offered:

This meeting, more than any other yet staged by the association, there is an array of horseflesh that represents the finest runners on the American turf. Practically all the star mounts from the Caliente meeting have come to Tanforan to participate in the big events to be staged there. Some of the best riders in the country have come north to ride under their stable colors at the San Bruno session.

Perhaps nowhere in California sports will a more cosmopolitan crowd be found than that visiting the races at Tanforan, where men and women from every walk of life follow their favorites with equal interest.

With fair weather assured, the crowd attending the Tanforan Spring Special tomorrow (Saturday) bids fair to be one of the greatest ever assembled ot a race track in the West. The feature will attract the finest horses on the coast and should be one of the most thrilling contests ever run off in the San Bruno oval.

The track is faster this season than it has ever been before, but at the same time a proper cushion has been maintained so as not to cause injury to any of the thoroughbreds contesting.

Restoration of racing in California on the high plane now maintained at Tanforan is due largely to the efforts of Joseph A. Murphy, who has been in charge of Tanforan since its reopening last year. Judge Murphy has set a high standard and deals harshly with those who sidestep requirements laid down for the conduct of racing in San Mateo county. He is one of turfdom's outstanding characters and has won himself an enviable reputation by his success with Hawthorn track in Chicago.

TENDERED FAREWELL PARTY ON LEAVING FOR NEW HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kirchubel, of Vista Grande avenue, were given a farewell dinner at the home of Mrs. H. L. Jones, on Vista Grande avenue, Monday evening, March 30. After the dinner the neighbors gathered for a surprise whist party, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, and a general good time was had by all. Mrs. Kirchubel was presented with a complete set of dinnerware by her friends and neighbors, for which she expressed sincere thanks. The family moved Tuesday morning to Sacramento, where they will make their home. Mr. Fred Kirchubel is a son of Mr. W. Kirchubel, of Vista Grande avenue, a pioneer of Daly City, and will be greatly missed by all. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. B. Wigton, Mrs. C. Wighton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Kirchubel, Miss Katie Kirchubel, Mr. and Mrs. A. Pangburn, Mr. and Mrs. R. Sanders and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Teal and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Nylund, Jr., Mr. Wesley Jones, Mr. A. Iverson, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Kirchubel

POLITICS DENIED BY BOARD IN SAN FRANCISCO JAIL PLAN

Denying stories that the selection of a San Francsco jail site in San Mateo county was being delayed by "politics" in San Mateo county, members of the San Mateo county board of supervisors are reported as saying that San Francisco had presented no formal application, and that no attempt had been made to "reach" any member of the board on any particular site.

Chairman Manuel Francis, who lives in the vicinity where the city of San Francisco wants to put its jail, is quoted as saying that he was not interested in the selection of the site, and personally he didn't much care where the jail was put, so long as it was consistent with the future development of his territory. He said he believed no other member of the board was interested in any one site, and that it was up to the city to decide what site it desired, and then apply for it.

M'GRATH PROPOSES DIVISION OF STATE

Division of the state at the Tehachapi as the only means of protecting the interest of Northern California in the event of the passage of the McKinley bill, was advocated by Judge John J. McGrath, president of the Peninsula Industrial Conference, at a meeting last Tuesday nght in Redwood City.

Speaking before the Redwood City Promotion Association, Judge McGrath declared that the bill will give Los Angeles a three to one control of the state legislation and a four to one congressional representation. He pointed out that while the city of Los Angeles owns and controls its own harbor, the San Francisco harbor is owned and controlled by the state of Calfornia.

"With Los Angels controlling the state legislature by a three to one majority and having an overwhelmingly stronger congressional representation in Washington, what chance will San Mateo county and Northern California have of securing federal or state aid for harbor and waterfront development?" the San Mateo judge asked.

"If San Mateo county and Northern California is to get any place, California must be divided at the Tehachapi. Let Northern California work out its own development and Southern California do the same," Judge McGrath said.

He outlined the development of San Mateo county and the work of the industrial conference in aiding the Western Pacific in its fight for a peninsula entrance to San Francsco, which he declared will mean the opening up of the large potential industrial lands along San Mateo county's waterfront.

PHILHARMONIC SIXTH SEASON PLANS READY

Plans for the sixth season of summer concerts in the Woodland theatre at Hillsborough on Sunday afternoons have virtually been completed, according to a statement issued by Leonora Wood Armsby, managing director for the Philharmonic Society of San Mateo County.

Eight concerts will be given in the peninsula open air theatre in successive Sundays, beginning June 21 and concluding August 9.

Following the custom established in previous seasons, guest conductors of international repute will yield the baton, directing the orchestra of 85 recruited from the personnel of the regular San Francisco symphony orchestra.

Suepriority of mind over matter is strikingly illustrated in the case of Mahatma Gandhi, the 96-pound brown man of India, who by sheer force of his character and leadership has caused Great Britain to change her entire policy with respect to his native land. No greater moral victory was ever won by motal man than this. As a first result of Gandhi's recent agreement with the British viceroy, 24,000 political prisoners have been given their freedom.

Dr. John Erskine declares that a child should learn to play an instrument individually, and not in company with others. Says he: "If a child learns to play an instrument in company with another child his ego will be suppressed in a desire to blend harmoniously with the other." We doubt that this applies to those who happen to take up the saxophone, but perhaps the doctor referred only to musical instruments.

Wifey: "There's an old clothes man at the door."

Setting an all-time record for all-around excellence, 11-month-old Ruth Anna Sell, who scored a rating of 99½ per cent, won first place over 200 other competitors in a perfect baby contest held at Los Angeles.

FIRE COMPANY NO 1 ENTERTAINS LADIES

Fire Company No. 1 had a ladies' night in their fire house on Santa Barbara avenue last Saturday. A most enjoyable evening was spent by the ladies and the members of the company. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening, after which delicious refreshments were served. Music for the dancing was furnished by Walter Harmon, assisted by his brother Al. Harmon and Comrade Brown.

The followng poem was composed during the evening and was read for the guests by Walter Harmon, captain of the First Aid:

WHEN IT'S MIDNIGHT

When it's midnight in the city,
And the boys are all asleep,
Station One is sitting pretty,
Waiting orders of the Chief.

Then again you hear the siren,
In the stillness of the night;
Darmoy calls in his sleep for Irene;
Woods almost dies of fright.

When it's mdnight in the city,
Shenk is always late, you see;
Banfield's always sitting pretty,
Always first, not number three.

Harmon's always right behind him,
Lewis then is number four;
But, oh, boy! Look out for Tennler;
Then comes Larry Shaw.

When it's midnight in the city,
Goldberg flies in his machine;
Sunderland is slim and witty,
And he tags Reardon's machine.

Now all the boys say it's a pity,
When someone pulls a false alarm.
Now don't forget our city;
Then last is Comrade Brown.

When it's midnight in the city,
District One is always there;
Chief Hansen is like a kitty,
But demands First Aid be there.

And again we must remember
That our wives are tried and true.
Now let this be a lesson,
Red Cross, First Aid, and you.

CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT

Charged with non-support of his wife and four minor childre, Joseph Bernetto, of Colma, was arrested on Wednesday on a warrant issued by Judge Edward Farrell at South San Francisco. Bail was fixed at $500 cash or $1,000 bonds, which Bernetto was unable to furnish. He was lodged in the county jail pending his hearing Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

TELEPHONE COMPANY WILL SUPPORT SAFETY CAMPAIGN

More than 12,000 Pacific coast "telephone cars" have been thrown into the scale of safe driving, in a campaign begun by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., to support safety campaigns of automobile associations, safety councils and others.

For years the company has schooled drivers of its 2,400 automobiles and trucks to model traffic rules, as have many other companies. It has made vigorous and largely successful efforts to control its own fleet. It now seeks the co-operation of about 10,000 private cars of employees for the safety code, making over 12,000 in all.

In San Francisco the plan would effect an estimated 2,000 employee cars, in addition to the 150 company-owned cars and trucks long operated by safety rules, according to Manager L. M. Brown. Urgent appeal is made by the company to thousands of telephone employees in five states to help reduce the mounting number of motor accidents, approximating 40,000 a year on the Pacific Coast. By posters, pamphlets, articles and a questionnaire, employees are urged to uncompromising obedience to traffic laws for safe and courteous driving.

The boulevard stop rule has been centered upon to dramatize this obedience as an example, to themselves and others, to improve all drving habits. The 30,000 emplayees are urged to come to a full stop at all boulevard signs, as required by law, and not merely slow down if the road is clear.

"Conscious self-discipline" is the aim of the "full stop" observance and the safe driving questionnaire. Thousands of questionnaires were sent in showing desier to co-operate.

In the company's safety code, rule "H" is considered the most important. It says: "In case of doubt—remember the other car always has the right of way." Another rule reminds the drivers, "If you expect other persons to avoid injuring your own children, you should take care not to injure the children of others."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

T. A. Grehan, advertisement manager of the Dublin, Ireland, Independent Newspapers, Ltd., says:

Over a cup of coffee the other day a bunch of us in business, one direction or another, were discussing that olde heresy, "There is no such thing as SENTIMENT in business." We agreed that business is too human a thing to be devoid of sentiment. We agreed further that business is saturated with sentiment and it does not matter what spot of the globe your business lot be cast.

We agreed, furthermore, that you could not run any business for long without sentiment. What we had in mind was not sloppy, kiss-me-all-over stuff, but the sentiment that prompts one wihte man to hand to his fellow man a clean, straight deal. If the tenets of business, as usually practiced in your line of business, occasionally calls for deception, then we fellows agreed "to Timbuctoo with deception." If the conduct of your business calls for deception, get into a line of activity where you can always show a clean sheet.

We fellows finally agreed on three other points. They are:

1. Sentiment in business stands for honesty.
2. Honesty is a splendid nerve tonic, and finally,
3. A splendid nerve tonic is good for the health.

That's all today, thank you!

BRYCE CANYON ENLARGED

Additional canyons have been added to Bryce Canyon National Park, in southwestern Utah, by the recent proclamation of President Hoover, reports the Touring Department of the National Automobile Club.

The park, as established in 1928, contained the remarkable Bryce Canyon, a horseshoe-shaped amphitheatre cut by erosion into one of Utah's wonderful plateaus and filled to the brim with a myriad of fantastically carved figures.

The original boundaries, however, did not take in some adjoining canyon country needed to complete the park. Congress, realizing this, authorized the president to add additional lands, and the recently promulgated proclamation increases the park area from 14,480 to 30,560 acres. The newly acquired lands were transferred from the Powell National Park.

The addition ranks in scenic grandeur with that portion included in the original park and includes a great crescent of eroded area in the Pink Cliffs with an air-line distance between tips of eight miles which gives an incomparable display of color. It has been likened to a giant rainbow fallen over on its side. From one elevated point in the newly added territory there is a circle of unobstructed vision of at least 320 degrees. From it on a clear day may be seen mountain ranges in the five states of Utah, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and Nevada.

Mrs. Samuel C. Lawrence of Savannah, Ga., the first girl scout to register in this country 19 years ago, joins 250,000 girl scouts in the United States in birthday celebration of the organization this month.

BETHEL FULL GOSPEL MISSION

This is Easter Sunday. What more appropriate day could there be for the opening of our new mission. As we look back to the first Easter and realize that all our hopes are centered on the resurrection of our Lord and Saviour; for as Paul says, if Christ is not risen then your hopes are in vain. We are filled anew with fresh joy and hope. Our larger quarters are starting a new era in the life of our city, and we are trusting God to make it something worth while; something that may be marked down in the annals of Daly City. We want to take this opportunity to invite you one and all to our special Easter services. Besides the usual service, Sunday school and morning worship, we will hold a dedication service at 3 P. M., and the evening service will be given over to the Sunday school Easter program. Those of you who were present at their Christmas program know what our youngsters can do, and will want to come and hear them again. Those of you who have never heard them, come, or you will miss something worth while. The children have worked hard and their teachers have worked hard to make this program worth while, so come one and all and encourage them in their work and get a blessing for your own self.

Starting April 5, meetings will be held at the hall every night except Monday and Saturday. Evangelist Wajie Angiel will preach at these meetings. He is quite an interesting character and well worth hearing. Brother Angiel was born and raised a Buddhist. He was taught in their temples from a boy and never knew any real childhood as we knew it. He never smiled, because he had nothing to smile about. He will tell you the story of his life in the Buddhist monastary during the campaign. At one time Brother Angiel was known in San Francisco as the Bad Angel of the Barbary Coast, catering to the basest desires of human kind. But since his conversion his life has been completely changed and he is now here as the Good Angel of Daly City, catering to the finest senses of mankind, pointing them to our wonderful Saviour. Brother Angiel has preached the Gospel in twenty-nine different countries, and has wonderful stories of adventure and true life. Don't fail to come and hear him. K. R. C.

The first traffic light installed in London not long ago got immediate and surprising results. Thousands of curious persons stopped at the busy corner at Fleet street and Ludgate Circus to watch the thing work, causing one of the worst traffic jams ever known in the world's metropolis.

Studebaker is all set
No Mid-Year Model Changes

FREE WHEELING with positive gear control was introduced in The President and The Commander July 10, 1930. It was added to The Dictator Eight in September and to the Studebaker Six in January, 1931.

Today, every Studebaker model has this greatest automotive advancement since the electric starter, plus the utmost in chassis improvements and body refinements.

Therefore, in accordance with the recommendations of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, Studebaker has decided to introduce no new models before next winter.

No other make of car offers such a complete line of chassis and body types as does Studebaker. Here is the proof:

THE STORY

Hiram Butterworth, miser, decides to leave his fortune to Elmer Clarke, a poor young nephew. He tells Absolom McPeake, his lawyer, of a deal forty years ago in which he swindled a man out of $40,000, and arranges for payment with interest. Butterworth dies suddenly. Nellie Cathcart, Elmer's sweetheart, tells him his inheritance is more than a million. "Colorado Charley" and his partner, Mae, decide to pluck Elmer. Unknown to Elmer, Nellie is heiress of the man Butterworth swindled and she figures there is about $1,000,000 coming to her. Elmer becomes a candidate for school trustee. Posing as a newspaper reporter under the name of Doris Gatewood, Colorado Charley's confederate calls on Elmer. Nellie recognizes in her the adventuress type.

Elmer arrived in Pilarcitos too late in the afternoon to take Nellie to luncheon, and as he was due that night to conduct an initiation of a class of thirty neophytes into the local lodge of the Woodmen of the World, he had no opportunity of seeing her until noon of the following day. By that time, however, he had listened to enough bucolic badinage and impish queries regarding his gallantry in Los Angeles to realize that Nellie Cathcart must have listened to twice as much.

Consequently he was somewhat troubled of soul as he drew up in front of the bank and waited for Nellie to emerge.

She came, flashing him a radiant smile of welcome from the top step, where she paused to make deliberate appraisal of the new millionaire, his chauffeur and his new car. Elmer stepped out, opened the tonneau door and waved her in.

"Oh, boy!" Nellie murmured breathlessly and popped in. "Elmer, darling, it's gorgeous—so gorgeous that I'm grateful to be the second girl to ride in it first."

Nellie couldn't help thrusting that one home—and it went home, too. Elmer flushed and looked as guilty as a sheep-killing dog as he climbed in beside her. Well, there was but one thing to do and that was to tell the truth, shame the devil and let the chips fall where they might.

"Well, I'll tell you all about her—" he began, but Nellie raised a menacing finger.

"Don't Elmer! It isn't necessary. You do not have to. I know you just happened to be riding along, you met her, she was walking, she recognized you and you just had to be decent and give her a lift."

"Well, have it your own way," he replied gloomily but bravely. "Only that wasn't the way. You see, I'd met her before. She's a newspaper correspondent and she came up here to get a story from me on how it feels to be a poor man one day and a millionaire the next. She's a very charming girl and her name is Doris Gatewood. She's a correspondent for the American Weekly of New York. I happened to tell her I was going to Los Angeles to buy this car and she suggested that if I would telephone her she'd let me read her story before she mailed it east. I suppose she didn't want to write anything to which I might object."

"Oh!" said Nellie. "Did she write a nice, interesting story about you, Elmer?"

"I'll be hanged if I know," he confessed. "We forgot to look at it."

"Just as well you forgot, Elmer. She couldn't write a snappy, interesting story anyhow. She's as spurious as a lead dollar."

"Now, how can you say such a thing about a girl you have never met?" Elmer challenged.

"Saw you walking down to the depot with her the night she was in Pilarcitos. Heard a fragment of her conversation. Heard her laugh. Noted her general make-up. That's all, but that's enough for little Nellie Cathcart."

"Well, I'll admit she isn't in your class, Nellie, but nevertheless I think she's charming. She's bully company—so much so that I double-crossed you and gave her the first ride—after I'd promised you."

Nellie's gay, gurgling little laugh set him at his ease. "Now that I've made you suffer, dear, you may pick yourself up and dust yourself off. I'm not miffed at you, but I could kill a number of people in this town today."

"So could I. I wish I hadn't jumped into that campaign for high school trustee. You're all that keeps me from leaving this town and never coming back. I hope I get whipped to a frazzle in that trustee fight—honestly, I do."

Nellie's hand came over and rested on his. "You go in and win," she commanded. "The day I catch you dragging your tail in this community is the day you and I are going to have our first real disagreement. Leave Pilarcitos as often as you like and have a good time while you are away, but—come back to Pilarcitos! When I begin to demand a detailed report on your doings it will be time for you to commence worrying."

"I don't think I could stand that," he confessed soberly.

Nellie laughed. "No man of spirit would. Where are you taking me for luncheon?"

"Out to Joe Angellotti's."

"Well, Elmer," Nellie announced when they found themselves seated, "I've sold your house and lot on the terms you named. If you'll drop in at the bank after luncheon and sign the deed, I'll attest it and the deal will be closed in twenty-four hours."

"Three cheers!" said Elmer. "Nellie, you're a smart girl. When does the new owner desire to take possession of my house?"

"Immediately."

"O. K. I'll take a suite at the hotel."

"Atta boy!" said Nellie. "Now let's talk about your campaign for high school trustee and organize that. I've been checking off votes, trying to estimate your probable strength, and it seems to me you have a fight on your hands."

"Watch my smoke," said Elmer Clarke.

Because he was so easy to handle Nellie favored him with a loving look and with difficulty repressed an impulse to lean across the table and kiss him. Dear, blind, straightforward, straight-thinking Elmer! All she had to do to hold him in line, was to show him a fight and then send him into it. He had been fighting and winning since his twelfth birthday—and it had never been an easy fight. His path had always been beset with obstacles, which he had successfully hurdled, but far down that path Nellie could discern one obstacle that must send him crashing to the ground.

Yes, nothing but death before he should reach that obstacle could save Elmer Clarke from having his nose rubbed in the dirt and Nellie had a vast curiosity to see how this man, who had tasted victory, would assimilate defeat, chagrin, sneers, gibes and the varied cruelties of a world which tramples joyously over the fellow who goes down in the fight. Standing alone, in a stricken field, would Elmer, defeated, acknowledge defeat?

"Why, Nellie, what are you crying about?" he demanded suddenly.

Nellie's sweet mouth trembled pitifully. "I—I—I can't tell you, Elmer. I'm just—s-s-silly, that's all. I—I haven't any spunk. Please forgive me—darling."

Elmer was delighted. Most men are when they think they have observed infallible evidence that the girl they love, but aren't quite certain of, evinces signs of jealousy. Poor Elmer thought she was jealous of Doris.

CHAPTER IX

That night Nellie sent a telegram to the editor of the American Weekly in New York, asking if their Los Angeles staff correspondent was Miss Doris Gatewood, and giving her address, which in the form of an anonymous letter had reached her that morning. She requested an answer collect.

She had it early next morning. "I thought so," Nellie soliloquized. "Only another buzzard gathering for the feast. Well, Elmer might as well learn about women from her. I wonder if she's an alimony hound or just a plain swindler. Well, a letter to the chief of police of Los Angeles, on the bank stationery, will receive prompt attention."

Nellie wrote the letter. Three days later she had her answer. It ran as follows:

"Dear Miss Cathcart:

"In response to your interesting letter of recent date:

"The circumstances under which the lady in question made the acquaintance of your friend appeared to me to present ample ground for suspicion—particularly in view of the fact that the gentleman has a considerable fortune.

"I therefore sent one of my most reliable men to investigate.

"He reports that the house at the address you name is inhabited by a notorious bunco steerer, known to the police all over the country as Colorado Charley. There is a young woman living there with him who passes as his sister, but who is an accomplice of his. She has a police record as the most accomplished come-on in the business, and is undoubtedly the person to whom you refer.

"We will keep them under surveillance. Meanwhile, if you should have any further information of importance to communicate to us, we shall be glad to co-operate with you.

"In closing, may I suggest that you do nothing to indicate to the young man that he is playing with fire? If we give this calf more rope we may be enabled to get him into the corral and earmark him.

"Very truly yours,
"J. Fitzgerald,
"Acting Captain of Detectives."

* * * * * * *

When Elmer called at the bank to sign the deed to his house and lot, he noted that the deed ran to Nellie Cathcart, an unmarried woman. "Hello," he murmured, "I see the buyer is hiding his identity by using you as a dummy. Why all the secrecy, Nellie?"

"No secrecy at all," Nellie replied demurely. "I am the buyer."

Elmer scratched his ear in perplexity. "What do you want of the property?" he demanded presently.

"It's a good buy, Elmer. I think I can sell it for about two thousand dollars profit in a year's time."

"Are you going to move into the house yourself?"

"No, Elmer. I'm going to rent it."

"Well, suppose you rent it to me for the present. It's all furnished with my furniture, and I'll be far more comfortable there than in that rat trap of a Palace hotel."

"The rental will be seventy-five dollars a month, Elmer."

"You're a highway robber!"

There fell a silence while they looked at each other. Then: "How goes your fight for school trustee, dear?" Nellie asked.

"It's a fight—and I'm fighting. That's all I can say. I'm making a house-to-house canvass."

"In the new car?" He nodded. "Better use the old tin Lizzie," she suggested. "That shiny new monster will cost you votes. I heard a well-known merchant of Pilarcitos remark to Mr. Moody, apropos of your new imported car, that a fool and his money are soon parted."

"Well, I must be off, Nellie. I'm afraid I shall not be able to see very much of you until after the school election."

"Atta boy, Elmer!"

As he strode out of the bank Nellie observed that, for the first time, he no longer walked with the slight limp that had been the result of an unexpected meeting with a soldier of the Prussian Guard. Once it had been a real limp; then it had become a habit; but now—

"Nothing like a little judicial prodding—nothing like a hint of opposition—nothing like an objective to be captured, to keep that boy busy," the girl soliloquized. "Well, anyhow, he didn't fib to me about Doris Gatewood. He didn't apologize or explain or try to excuse himself—and that's a comfort."

* * * * * * *

True to his promise, Elmer saw little of Nellie during the period intervening before the school trustee election. He had a fight on his hands and he fought. The Sunday before the election he invited the entire high school district to a barbecue. During the barbecue he made the only public speech of his campaign. It was a rattling good speech and well delivered.

As usually occurs when an untrained speaker warms to his subject, Elmer's oratory suddenly captivated Elmer. Almost before he realized it, he had announced his intention of seeking the office of mayor of Pilarcitos, as an independent candidate, at the November election.

When Elmer Clarke stepped down from the table upon which he had made his speech, he knew he had won. In fact, he was elected by a majority of nineteen votes, and took office at the next regular meeting of the board.

Meanwhile the Pilarcitos Clarion had increased its circulation by one. Colorado Charley had subscribed for three months, on the off-chance that thus he might be kept in touch with the activities of his intended victim. As a result of his foresight, Elmer received a telegram from Doris Gatewood on the morning of election day, wishing him a tremendous victory and making the prophecy that any other issue would be improbable.

Elmer thought it was both kind and considerate of her to do this; consequently an hour after the votes were counted he sent her a telegram thanking her and announcing his victory. Immediately she replied with a night letter suggesting that he owed himself a present and that it ought to take the form of another visit to Los Angeles.

With that suggestion Elmer was in entire accord. He told Nellie about it before he left and she agreed that he ought to go. When he told her he would probably see Doris Gatewood and her brother while there, she told him she hoped he would see the charming Miss Gatewood and that he might enjoy her society immensely. As a result of this conversation, Elmer departed not a little irritated. He would have preferred to have Nellie display opposition to his plan.

To say that Elmer enjoyed his vacation would, in these days of superlative slang, scarcely express the extent of his enjoyment. Perhaps it would be better to state that he ate it up. He lunched and dined and fox-trotted in every worth-while hotel, restaurant and road house in Los Angeles county, and then departed, accompanied by Colorado Charley and Doris Gatewood, for points farther south. They swam and played golf at Coronado, they lunched at delightfully wicked Tia Juana, and, at a bare suggestion from his guests, he ruined the paint on his new automobile in a wild dash across the Colorado desert to spend a week at the Grand canyon.

Quite early in the history of the junket Doris commenced calling him Elmer and insisted that if they were to be good pals he must call her Doris. He did—gratefully.

Presently she took to calling him dear and darling and old thing and old dear and silly boy and sundry other verbal evidences of insincerity. Elmer liked it. He "ate it up." In the gentle art of coquetry Doris Gatewood was a past master, and it is not to be marveled at that he became hopelessly infatuated with her.

She thrilled him, she dazzled him, she brought on a delicious pain in his heart, she filled him with the wonder of her. When he thought of Nellie Cathcart it was with a pang of shame and trepidation, but even this unpleasantness gradually disappeared, exorcised by Elmer himself. Finding he could not think of Nellie without having his indescribable happiness clouded, he ceased to think of her at all, although he did send her a few picture postcards. She was but a memory of another life.

Nevertheless old habits, particularly of loyalty, are hard to break. Elmer was more than the devoted friend and host, but not quite the lover. He wanted to be but lacked the courage. Doris realized this and created opportunity after opportunity for him to declare himself. She even went so far, on their way back to Los Angeles, when they traveled by night to avoid the heat of the day, as to pretend to sleep with her lovely head on his shoulder.

Elmer trembled a little but that was all, so the lady took advantage of Colorado Charley's presence in the front seat with the driver to commence weeping softly; when Elmer asked her tenderly why she wept she told him it was because they had to part so soon. Thereupon she got her first real rise out of Elmer. He said:

"Well, I don't know about that!"

There is something connected with driving a fast and powerful car through the night which promotes straight thinking, and so Elmer came to the conclusion that he was violently in love with two women at the same time; he had to choose one, he knew which one he wanted and he lacked the courage to choose her and jilt the other.

He reflected bitterly that in the days of his poverty no such unhappy ultimatum could possibly have been his portion. Also, he had a curious presentment that Colorado Charley was going to borrow some money from him before long, and that he, Elmer, was going to grant the loan and, figuratively speaking, kiss the money goodby.

What with the happiness that was in the company of Doris, Elmer had not hitherto given more than a cursory thought to his other companion. Now his thoughts centered suddenly on Colorado Charley, who, by the way, was known as Harvey Gatewood.

It occurred to him now that Harvey was a bit narrow between the eyes, a trifle furtive, a shade overdressed, his affability and graciousness a fraction overstressed. He talked too much and too big.

Elmer felt his suspicions mounting, even as the hackles of a dog rise as he lies asleep and dreams of rats. "If I should marry Doris," he decided, "I'll give Harvey the air about ten minutes after leaving the altar. He has Doris fooled, but fooling me isn't so easy."

African Gorillas Going Like American Buffalo

The gorillas of the British hills of Africa are dying out, principally from the ravages of big-game hunters who kill for the mere pleasure of it. The animals are given some degree of governmental protection in some parts of the African continent, but on account of the difficulties of guarding the country the protection does not amount to much. The Nigerian groups are somewhat larger, but are being decreased rapidly by the hunters. The natives, as a rule, are not in sympathy with this slaughter, for they regard the animals with friendly interest. It is only on rare occasions that they show any inclination to attack humans. The gorilla units confine their movements to certain well-defined limits, and they roam about the country harmless and quietly. As a rule they keep to the country, which is somewhat inaccessible, and make excusions into the inhabited portions only when driven there by the unfavorable conditions existing in the high countries. The native regard for these animals may be based upon superstition to a certain extent, and it is quite common for the native tanner to refuse to touch the pelts brought to them by hunters.

Matters of Controversy

There is good reason for supposing that dogs, horses and other animals dream. The question is closely linked with another, namely, whether animals can think and reason. Both questions are still the subject of controversy among naturalists.

Important changes in requirements for admission to the University of California were announced recently by Recorder T. S. Steele, following revocation by the Academic Senate of the pending regulations. The changes leave responsibility for determining scope and content of courses, preparatory to university admission, to high school authorities. Under the changed rule, a graduate who has had four full years of high or preparatory school work, with 15 units, may enter the University without examination, if the school was accredited. If unable to qualify fully by "certificate," the high school graduate may remove deficiencies in subject and grade requirements by: 1—Passing appropriate college board examinations. 2—Presenting credits earned after graduation, or credits earned in high school after attending another college or junior college. 3—Completing acceptable courses of study in a collegiate institution of recognized standing.

A crowd of approximately 10,000 residents of Los Angeles and Orange counties united in celebrating the official opening of Manchester avenue to the sea, a thoroughfare which now extends from Santa Ana to Playa del Rey and is considered one of the most important arteries in the highway system of Southern California.

Steam and electric railroads operating in California reported to the Railroad Commission 343 less accidents, due to operation, in 1930 than during 1929, with 26 fewer fatalities, and 338 less injured. These figures, compiled by the Safety Division of the Commission, do not include grade crossing accidents, which are not due to train operation, and are handled separately.

The first woman to climb Mt. Hoffman in winter, Mrs. Don Tresidder of Yosemite, is back home after two weeks of skiing in the high Sierras. The climb up the 10,900-foot peak on skis Mrs. Tresidder said, is esier than walking up the mountain in summer. She made the actual climb with a guide in two hours and a half, and slid down over the same distance on the return trip in fifteen minutes.

The committee to investigate Los Angeles-Owen Valley land purchase negotiations has been named by Lieut.-Gov. Merriam as Senators Allen, Yreka; Baker, Salinas; Cassidy, Auburn; Edwards, Orange, and McCormick of Rio Vista. Senator Allen is to be chairman of the committee which will study the negotiations between the Water and Power Board of Los Angeles and property owners of Owens Valley to determine, if possible, if the dealings have been conducted fairly and expeditiously.

Many sturdy young legs are pedaling bicycles along Southern California highways these days as Boy Scouts attempt to qualify for merit bades in the endurance, resourcefulness and skill tests. The Scouts, in these particular tests, must cover fifty miles in ten hours, repair punctures, take the "bike" apart and put it together again—so it will run, of course. A. H. Long, Scoutmaster of Troop 19, Glendale, has advised the boys to wear their Scout uniforms when making the tests so motorists will regard their presence on the highways with due caution.

Briquets for heating the home are familiar to Californians, but briquets for replanting our burned or denuded forests are something to write home about. Only the briquets for reforesting are not inflammable but are composed of earth in which are buried two or three seeds and covered with a coating of paraffine to retain the moisture and act as a coment until the briquet is planted. Invented by Aksel Blakken, a Norwegian forester, this method is believed by U. S. Forest Service officials to have practical possibilities for reforesting the national forests, as it prolongs the planting season, eliminates the cost of transplanting seedlings and gives the maximum opportunity for their development and chances of survival.

Of all the pigeons released by San Bernardino County Racing Pigeon Association and the Sierra Club of Pasadena recently, at Las Vegas, Nev., only one pigeon managed to conquer the terrific heat of the desert and return to its home loft, it was announced by club members. The pigeon that returned was one of ten entered by H. H. Taylor of the San Bernardino County Club. It is an old veteran of desert racing and had won most of the previous races this season. It is believed the pigeons were unable to withstand the heat of the desert and were forced down to rest, and are taking their time about returning to their lofts. The bird owners are convinced most all of the pigeons will return to their lofts in due time.

Recreation records of the 18 national forests of the California Region for the past year shows that business conditions in 1930 affected the more expensive forms of vacations, such as sojourns at summer resorts and hotels, but had little effect on the simpler and inexpensive kinds such as hiking and picnicking. The number of guests at summer recorts and hotels operated under permit from the U. S. Forest Service in the national forests declined from 1,018,000 persons to 573,000, but the number of hikers increased from 101,000 in 1929 to 112,000 in 1930, picnickers increased from 1,174,000 to 1,336,000, and campers from 659,000 to 734,000. The number of permits for summer homes increased from 5,876 to 6,092, a gain of 216, proving that the business depression did not reach the mountain cabins in the national forests. The total number of persons, including transient travelers, visiting the national forests of the State, declined from 18 million in 1929 to 16 million in 1930, according to estimates by the forest rangers.

Members of the central section, California Elementary Principals' Association, at their annual conference at Bakersfield, elected N. H. Farnham of Oildale president.

"Keep your airport" was the advice of Marshall Hoppin, United States Commerce Department inspector, after inspecting Placerville Airport. Hoppin explained the field will probably never be used by transcontinental routes "but it's a mighty good thing to have a field in mountainous country."

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK

Public Schools Week, held annually during the last week of April and the forerunner of American Education Week, in its inception was a California Masonic event.

This week, however, has now, in its twelfth observance, become a community affair. In many communities it is the outstanding feature of the school year. The original purpose of the observance was to call attention to the crisis, due to the World war, confortning the public schools of America.

There was a serious shortage of teachers, due to war service, schools were being closed, children, particularly in the rural communities, were being denied the education to which they were and are entitled, and there was apathy about remedial measures which had been proposed.

These difficulties were then met. During the years that have followed the purpose of the observance has been gradually enlarged so that the object sought by fraternal and commerical organizations, civic leaders, service clubs, Parent-Teacher groups, the American Legion and all others concerned for the development of our educational system, may be stated as follows:

To afford the general public an opportunity annually to be kept informed regarding California's program of public attention.

To combat destructive criticism.

To assist in correcting errors which may creep into the public school system.

To insure that close contact between the public and the public schools essential to a continuing confidence of the people in their public school system.

The development of the annual observance of Public Schools Week into a community affair is evidenced by the proclamation annually issued by the Governor of the state calling the attention of the public to the week and advising the people of this opportunity to obtain first-hand information of their schools; and by similar proclamations issued by the mayors and councils of municipalities generally throughuot the state.

FACTS ABOUT EASTER

Easter Sunday, which falls on April 5 this year, is observed by Christians in commemoration of Christ's resurrection, but not as an actual anniversary, as its date varies from year to year, in accordance with a method of computing it adopted by the Council of Nice in the year 325.

The custom of celebrating Easter is really an outgrowth of the Jewish Passover. There is no trace of its observance as a Chritian festival in the New Testament or in the writings of the apostolic fathers. In fact, neither Christ nor the apostles enjoined the keeping of this or any other festival.

But as most of the early Christians were derived from the Jewish church, many of the old Jewish festivals continued to be observed by them and gradually passed into the Christian calendar.

The name of Easter is derived from Easter, the Anglo-Saxon goddess of spring, and many customs which have marked the day's observance are drawn from pagan sources. In the ancient church the celebration of Easter lasted eight days, but after the eleventh century it was limited to three, later to two, and finally to one.

The proper time for the observance of Easter has been the subject of bitter controversies among various Christian groups, and only during the last eight years has the entire Christian world observed Easter simultaneously.

According to present usage, Easter can not occur earlier than March 22 or later than April 25. The last time it fell on March 22 was in 1818, after which some three centuries must elapse before it occurs so early again. It fell on April 25 the last time in 1843, but will not occur so late in any year of the present century.

Of all Easter customs the use of Easter eggs is the most universal. This is also of pagan origin, the egg having been considered a symbol of immortality by the ancients.

ISSUES OF THE DAY

At irregular intervals the National Economic League, composed of American leaders of thought and action in every field, takes a referendum to determine what, in the opinion of its members, are the paramount problems of the United States.

The result of such a referendum taken recently is of timely interest. The leading problems, with the number of votes cast for each, included the following:

Prohibition headed the list with 1,871 votes, followed in order by administration of justice, 1,750; lawlessness, 1,514; unemployment and economic stabilization, 1,434. Taxation was considered paramount by 966, efficient democratic government by 708, farm relief by 694, political corruption by 647, and the tariff by 624.

Many otheor questions were suggested by a less number of voters, but some of the issues about which a great deal of noise is being made received scant attention at the hands of the League. Only 301 were interested in Senator Norry's outcry against public utilities; even less were concerned with railroads, banking, speculation and divorce.

Inasmuch as the League is a non-political, non-sectarian body, drawn from a cross-section of the thoughful citizenship of the country, it is fair to assume that its referendum represents a fair consensus of public opinion. If so, its findings may be of value to politicians who are now maneuvering for advantage in anticipation of the 1932 campaign.

NEW QUEEN OF THE SEA

Recently the French Line laid the keel for a new giant turbo-electric liner that is to be the largest and fastest ship afloat, and asked for suggestions for a name for it. American interest has been shown by more than 600 letters from the United States and Canada, offering a wide variety of names, running the gaumut from the sublime "Jeanne d'Arc" to the ridiculous "Mademoiselle from Armentiers."

While the latter ribald suggestion was the choice of only one humorist, more than three score letters have urged the use of "Jeanne d'Arc," and three have varied the same idea by proposing that the ship be named "Maid of Orelans."

Running slightly behind this suggestion is one to call the vessel "La France," a name deemed appropriate by representing the whole nation.

Many letters suggested the honoring of various French personages, including Napoleon, Foch, Joffre, Victor Hugo, Charlemagne, Clemenceau, Jules Verne and Louis Pasteur, while Frontenac, the redoubtable governor-general of France's American possessions in the seventeenth century, was not forgotten.

Inasmuch as the new queen of the sea will not be ready for service until the spring of 1934, the definite selection of a name will not be made immediately, but when the time comes there will be no scarcity of suggestions from which to choose.

FLYERS MUST KEEP FIT

Hazards of flying, like hazards in many other fields, are not to be measured merely in terms of flirting with sudden death. There must be considered the strain which continued flying exerts on the human body, especially on the eyes, ears, lungs, heart and nervous system.

When bodily resources become exhausted the individual is likely to lose confidence and judgment. Long flights may bring eye strain and headaches, while the ear is subjected to severe stresses due to cold winds, sudden changes of speed and direction, rapid variations in atmospheric pressure, and the terrific roar of the engine. Other parts of the body are heavily taxed, especially under unfavorable flying conditions.

Therefore, men and women of the air must live a careful life, eat moderately, and with a metriculous regard for proper diet. They can not afford to risk the irritating effects of artificial stimulants, such as alcoholic beverages, tea and coffee. They must have proper rest, sleep and exercise, and in other ways keep in the pink of condition if they would withstand the strenuous demands for air navigation.

The most successful aviators, both men and women have been those who gave most careful heed to the physical requirements of their profession.

GAS RATES GO DOWN

Gas rates declined about 20 per cent bettween 1921, when the high point in gas cost was reached, and 1929. During this time, gas found a thousand new fields of usefulness in industry, and met with an increasingly enthusiastic domestic demand. In cooking and in central heating, its efficiency, cleanliness and economy have made it the modern fuel.

It is said that bees produce honey from material that would otherwise be of no use, and thereby add twenty-five million dollars to America's income.

An Arkansas newspaper records that a woman was hurt by falling out of a buggy. And it wasn't in the "25 years ago" column, either.

FARM PRICES LOWEST

Farm products further declined in price during the past month, reaching the lowest general level in twenty years, according to the Department of Agriculture. The index of farm prices recently stood at 90, while never before since this index has been available has it been below 92, that low figure being reached in 1911.

The purchasing power of a given quantity of farm products is now about one-third less than it was before the war, on an average. In February the price of chickens, cattle, lambs, butter, apples, and potatoes were somewhat higher than in 1913, but corn, hay, cotton, oats, wheat, hogs, sheep, eggs and several other products ranged from 10 to 40 per cent below pre-war prices.

It is natural that the continued decline of farm product prices since the passage of the so-called farm relief bill should cause much criticism of the law itself and the actions of the Farm Board in administering its provisions. Whether these criticisms are entirely justified is a matter of individual opinion.

One thing seems certain, and that is the fact that legislation can noe make good times for the farmer when economic conditions are against him. Politicians who promised him good times will have a lot of explaining to do between now and next election.

THE PIONEERS

An exchange reminds us that the theatre programs of some forty years ago frequently carried a note concerning an innovation in lighting arrangements, as follows:

"The use in theatres of electric light is experimental. Its brilliancy is of incalculable advantage if it does not prove too intense. It is our duty to give the new light the fairest and fullest trial to reach the highest and best results attainable through experiment."

While this sounds queer to us now, it did require vision and courage on the part of theatre owners and others to give the then newly discovered light "a fair trial." Their progressiveness was rewarded, as it deserved to be, and nowhere has the science and art of lighting reached greater heights of perfection than in the theatre of today. Much credit is due to the pioneers who made these amazing developments possible.

Crooks who play upon the religious emotions of their dupes are not uncommon. In fact, this is a favorite method with many swindlers. Five men and two women are under indictment in New York City for selling two million dollars worth of worthless motion picture stock to 400 pastors and 6,000 laymen under the promise to produce a picture to be called "Mary the Virgin." A Jewis lawyer, George Zerdin Medalie, will prosecute the defendants in his capacity as United States attorney.

Paul Marcellini, of New York City, is rejoicing in the fact that he is entitled to an annual vacation with pay. Arrested for speeding, he was given a $50 fine or the alternative of ten days in jail. He counted out the $50, then put it back into his pocket, saying, "I've got ten days vacation left; I'll go to jail and save this fifty."

HIGHWAY BILL ASSURES IMPORTANT NEW ROUTES

Important additions to the state highway system are now assured, following signing of the Edward-Kline Bill by Governor James Rolph, Jr., according to the California State Automobile Association, which actively supported the policy under which the new roads were selected. Five Northern California routes, including two in the bay region, are provided for in the measure.

Altogether the bill authorizes the improvement and inclusion in the state secondary system of twenty-two roads, existing or projected, totaling about 804 miles.

The bay region will be from the new Broadway tunnel at the outskirts of Oakland to Walnut Creek, in Contra Costa county, and from Vallejo to the intersection known as the Napa "Y." The three other Northern California roads will supply essential links for motor travel between California and bordering states. These roads will be from Weed to the state line, connecting to Klamath Falls, Oregon, providing the only state highway between California and central Oregon; Alturas to the state line, connecting to Lakeview, Oregon, supplying a missing link on the Yellowstone Cut-Off and the only state highway between California and eastern Oregon; and Quincy to the Nevada state line, a commercially important route that will also open up a vast recreational area.

Another highway of importance to the northern and central part of the state included in the bill is the Bakersfield to Mojave connection. Although located in the southern area, this route will influence tourist travel northward by completing the connection between the Golden State Highway, along the San Joaquin Valley, and the gateway at Needles.

Senator Arthur H. Breed, president pro tem of the Senate and a director of the California State Automobile Association, and representatives of other organizations interested in highway progress, were present at the signing of the bill by Governor Rolph. The bill was sponsored by the Association, Automobile Club of Southern California and the State Chamber of Commerce.

SECONDARY ROADS NEEDED

There are three million miles of roads in the United States. One hundred and twenty thousand miles are high-type main highways, 600,000 miles are stone, gravel or sand-clay. Fifty thousand miles more have been graded. And the balance is unimproved.

To produce this result more than twelve billion dollars has been spent. Yet there are millions of Americans, principally on farms, whose business and social contracts are out of adjustment because of poor roads, impassable during several months of each year.

Only by the wisest, most cautious use of road funds can necessary secondary roads now be built without plunging communities into debt. We take a justifiable pride in the magnificent, heavy traffic, trunk highways that go here and there throughout the nation—each mile of them represent necessary expenditures of tens of thousands of dollars. In contrast to this, full-width roads, passable at all times of the year, and adequate for tributary traffic, can be built of local materials, at a fraction of the cost.

The secondary, farm-to-market road might be called the backbone of our highway system. A million dollar highway is of small use to a farmer who lives five miles away on a dirt road, or to a merchant in a village which tourists avoid because of the bane of dangerous, semi-impassable roads. America's highway evolution will not be complete until our primary highway system is augmented by nation-wide feeder arteries of inexpensive, but weatherproof, local roads.

A new magazine is published by and for lunatics. It is unique only in admitting the fact.

PROBLEM OF RURAL SCHOOLS OF STATE

The problem of the rural schools of the state and the close relationship that exists between the graduates of rural schools and the life of the great cities, is pointed out in a statement issued by the general committee in charge of the twelfth annual observance of Public Schools Week, April 20.

"The problems of the rural schools is not altogether a strictly rural one," the statement declares. "Such is the fluidity of our population that a large number of children whose education has been received in a rural school become residents of our cities; and that they should have had equal educational opportunities with the city child is as much the concern of the cities to which they have removed as it is to that of the rural communities they have left.

"Those who regard the rural school as the problem of only the rural community overlook the fact that the education of every child is the concern of the state."

The statement continues:

"The problem of rural education is not peculiar to California. There are 170,000 rural one-room school houses in the United States; over one-half of all the school children are enrolled in rural schools and are being taught by approximately one-half of the total number of public school teachers.

"In school equipment, in buildings, in length of sessions, in training of teachers, in supervision, in curriculum and in financial support the rural child is denied an even opportunity with the city child. The average city child gets as many school days in six years as the rural child does in eight.

"The problem is one of great concern to educators everywhere and will be made one of the features of Public Schools Week beginning April 20, so that the people, especially of the cities, may become more fully informed of the pressing need for the immediate betterment of our California rural school conditions."

BILLY ARNOLD IS NOT TO RETIRE

Speedway Champion Will Defend His Title in May.

Billy Arnold, youthful American speedway champion and winner of the 1930 500-mile race, will defend his title in the International race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, in May.

"The story that Billy will retire is positively unfounded," declared Harry Hartz, owner of the car which Arnold drove to victory there last year and which the boy speed star will pilot again in the coming race.

"But it has many a new gadget to make it faster this year," says Hartz, the entrant of the mount. "You'll recall it was a front wheel drive car which won—the first 500-mile race victory for this type of car—and we were only sixty-five hundredths of a mile an hour slower than the record of 101.13 miles an hour set by Pete De Paolo in 1925."

Hartz, himself a great driver who was second three times and fourth twice in Indianapolis races, intended to drive the car last May. But a leg injury, sustained in an eastern race, made it necessary for him to choose a substitute.

Arnold, a youngster with a heap of driving experience, was among those being considered. Hartz, a shrewd business man as well as an astute racing strategist, asked Arnold what terms he would expect to drive the car which Hartz had ready for the time trials.

"I'd drive that car for nothing," snapped Arnold. And he was sent to the post.

Arnold and Hartz made a great winning combination. Hartz remained in the pits and directed the campaign of the courageous Arnold who went sweeping through the field as the race progressed. At the finish Hartz, who had sat in the pit all day, was more exhausted than Arnold who had been driving.

"It was an awful strain," laughed Hartz. "I was afraid something might break."

Control Is Great Point in All College Sports

"The important point is not so much who is to pay for the upkeep of athletics as it is who is to be in control and what use is made of the receipts," Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, former president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, said in an interview in the Yale Daily News.

General Pierce said: "There is no need for excitement because one sport has become a profitable enterprise. Athletics must be financed but the important point is, who is to be in control and what use is made of the receipts.

"If the bowl subscribers were in control at Yale, then there would be cause for alarm. But this is not so and athletic authorities at Yale and other colleges have demonstrated control of the situation. Most of them are using the revenues from football sanely and wisely."

New Trotting Prospect Has Wonderful Speed

Judging by the step which she has already shown in her training at Longwood, Fla., the two-year-old trotting filly, Jane Willet, owned by W. H. Strang, Brooklyn, N. Y., looks to be the making of a wonderful baby trotter.

The daughter of Mr. McElwyn, 1:59¼, and Miss Rhinelander, 2:08½, has looked well at the Southern training camp ever since she put in an appearance, but a few days ago she tramped off a mile in 2:23 with the last half in 1:06¾, and final quarter in 31 seconds. A two-year-old that can uncork a 31 seconds quarter during the winter months is not to be sneered at by any means.

Charity Ticket Wins $38,000 in Lottery

A $1 sweepstakes ticket purchased by Valerie J. Zerbo of Brooklyn after one of his employees had told him that the affair was a charity one, and then laid aside and temporarily forgotten, won Zerbo $38,476.

Zerbo, who is president of a Brooklyn mirror works, said he was not in the habit of betting on the races, but placed a dollar in the Army and Navy Veterans' association sweepstakes when told that it was for charity. Then he received a telegram informing him that he had drawn Belgian Lass in a race at Havana, and the following day learned that his horse won.

My Greatest Thrill in Sport

By GENE TUNNEY
Retired Heavyweight Champion

Fighters get plenty of thrills. I believe I got my share. Every battle turned up something new and different.

Gene Tunney.

But my greatest thrill is still very plain in my memory. My big one, I am sure, came in the Carpentier match at the New York Polo grounds.

There was quite a lot of jockeying done before the match was made. It gave me plenty of time to try to study out the flashy Frenchman.

So much had been said and written about Carpentier's great right hand that I held it in great respect.

I didn't fear it exactly. But I planned to avoid it, if possible.

Then I had seen that great right in action myself. He used it against Battling Levinsky and in the now historical second round with Jack Dempsey.

All that was said of that hand evidently was true. He knocked out Levinsky with it. He shook Dempsey down to his heels with it. Naturally, I was expecting disastrous results if it collided with my chin.

I dreamed about right hands all the time I was training for the bout.

We hadn't been in the ring long together when my biggest thrill came along.

But the expected results did not happen. Instead, by some coincidence or other, it didn't even annoy me. His great right didn't even daze me!

When I learned he couldn't hurt me with his greatly advertised right, I knew I would beat him.

That was the big thrill—expecting to be knocked dead by a wallop that was over-press-agented.

In the tenth round came another thrill—almost as great.

Georges led a left. I stepped inside it and connected to his chin with my own left.

The Frenchman fell on his face.

The knockdown was as much of a surprise to me as it must have been to Georges.

Track Athletics Pick Up as Olympics Loom

Track athletics should pick up somewhat around the country with the Olympics coming on and the boys of this generation therefore in the spot to cut in on immortal fame.

While America has been consistent in winning the team championship, there have been plenty of spots in which we have been weak. The United States Olympic team won only one race on the flat at Amsterdam in 1928. That was the 400-meter run won by Ray Barbuti.

America has not won the 800-meter in the Olympics since Ted Meredith took first at Stockholm in 1912. We have not won the 1,500-meter since Mel Sheppard took it at London in 1908, and we have never won the 5,000 or the 10,000-meter events. Our last marathon winner was Johnny Hayes in 1908.

Most of our success has been in the dashes, hurdles and field events.

The East seems to be coming along with a couple of good boys. Carl Coan of Penn stepped the mile in 4:13 to break Ray Conger's string, and Russell Champman of Bates is a fine prospect in the half. Coan clipped five seconds off his best previous mark to beat Conger.

Phillies Get "Buzz"

"Buzz" Arlett, Oakland outfielder and with the Oakland Pacific Coast club for the last thirteen years, has been sold to the Philadelphia Nationals. Arlett is a good hitter and will be expected to bolster up the gap vacated by Lefty O'Doul.

Earl Sheely to Stage Comeback With Boston

Earl Sheely is going to try to stage another comeback this year. He tried one with Pittsburgh in 1929. This year he will be with the Boston Nationals.

For years he played with the Chicago Americans and he was always rated as one of the most valuable first sackers in the league.

Sheely always lacked speed, the result of an accident to his legs from which he never fully recovered. But he was an excellent hitter and there was never a first sacker who made a better target for a fielder's throw. Because he was slow, Sheely never wandered far from first and he was always at the bag in plenty of time for the throw. Few poor ones ever came his way. He was a target the boys could not miss.

Yost on Strategy

Fielding Yost, who can recall the lineups and details of football games in which his teams played back in the early years of the century, also has a great mind for the immense details of the handling of armies and the strategical maneuvers of war.

It is his contention that if the allies had accepted Pershing's emergency offer of the A. E. F. at the time of the German spring drive on the British in 1918 as related in the American chief's memoirs recently, the war would have been over months sooner.

SIDELIGHTS

Intelligence tests are the bunk, so far as giving any clue to the real intelligence of those to whom they are applied is concerned. At least, that in the opinion of Dr. Walter Pitkin, instructor in journalism and adult education at Columbia University. We are glad to have our own long-held view on the subject confirmed by such an eminent authority.

No flyer, man or woman, has ever shown more grit and determination than Lady Mary Heath, noted British aviatrix, who has just staged a most remarkable come-back. In 1929 she crashed at Cleveland, receiving injuries which were at the time thought to be fatal. Last week she took to the air for the first time since the accident, and is now planning a long distance flight, the details of which have not been made public.

Robert Volland, a newsboy of Columbus, Ind., found an effective pinch-hitter when he became ill a few days ago. His father, who is mayor of the city, carried Robert's papers for him for several days, and it is said that no complaint were made by subscribers on the route while the mayor held down the job.

Will Rodgers, Jr., wants to be a newspaper man, and has started in the advertising department of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. His father has great hopes for him, expressed as follows: "If they can get him up in the morning without calling out the fire department, he may make a pretty good hand."

A scientific name has been found for those restless folks who want to be always doing things and going places. According to the Eugenics Research Association, such people are "hyperkinetics," suffering from an abnormal activity of mind and body otherwise known as "hyperkinesia."

A sure-fire method of ridding a community of flies is suggested by an Italian scientist. The method is simple enough, being merely that of spraying all garbage with a mixture of molasses, arsenic and water, but the difficulty lies in getting everybody to do it. Mussolini has ordered its adoption in Italy, and, being who he is, may get the desired results.

The University of Illinois research hospital is studying the chronic kind of headache known as migraine, and pays a young man who has it $50 a month and board for permitting experiments to be made on him. And if he gets cured he will naturally lose his job.

It is difficult to realize that artificial ice-making has been employed on a commercial scale scarcely more than half a century, while electrical refrigeration in the home is a developement of the last few years. Now less than one-tenth of the ice used in the United States is the natural product and there are nearly two million household refrigerators in service.

"ONCE IN A LIFETIME" COMING TO THE CURRAN

Sid Grauman, former resident of San Francisco, where he got his early start in association with his dad, the late D. J. Grauman, in the operation of various amusement enterprises, and who later on did more than any other man to make Hollywood famous with his premieres which attracted attention to him throughout the world, has now turned his entire attention to the producing of stage plays, and on Monday evening, April 6, Mr. Grauman will present at the Curran Theatre, San Francisco, the most talked of stage production of this day and age, "Once in a Lifetime," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, and which has already played thirty weeks on Broadway and is still going strong.

"Once in a Lifetime" deals with Hollywood motion picture making. The industry has its ribs tickled and broken; it is kicked, trampled on, dragged out and knocked about. The story runs around three vaudeville actors, who strike out for Hollywood in the early days of the talkies. "Dr." George Lewis (Charles Lawrence) is the sap of the trio. The three plan a racket in Hollywood. May Daniels (Aline MacMahon) poses as an elocution teacher and opens up a school to teach the movie stars to talk. The school lasts but a short time. George, the sap, crosses the patch of a film mogul as he gets the bad news and tells the mogul certain so-called bitter truths about the industry which he himself heard a couple of other fellows beefing forth. The outburst so impresses Herman Glogauer (Louis Sorin), the mogul, that he hires George as general supervisor of the studio.

In the cast and company of fifty are Charles Lawrence, Aline MacMahon, Russell Hopton, Marie Nordstrom, Louis Sorin, Kate Campbell, Marian Byron, Gregory Gave, John Vosburgh, Mary Mulhern, Camille Rovell, Eddie Marr, and others of note.

A SAFE FARMING PROGRAM

One who has studied the problems of the farmer declares that in all attempts to solve the farm problem, a problem not only of vital interest to the farmer, but to the city consumer as well, the chief difficulty is not in determining what things ought to be done, but in inducing the farmer to do them. It is almost unanimously agreed, he declares, that certain conditions are necessary to safe and profitable farming.

1. The raising of all stock feed and as much food as possible at home. This means grain, hay, gardens, cows, hogs and poultry.
2. Keeping up soil fertility by growing soil-building crops to be plowed under, thus saving fertilizer expense.
3. Reduction of acreage of crops, like cotton, which are nearly always over-produced. In other words, practical diversification.
4. General adoption of co-operative marketing.

The first two conditions may be established by the individual farmer. The last two require co-operation, particularly the marketing of crops.

While legislation may be helpful to a certain degree, no legislation will ever make farming safe and dependable without the observance of the principles stated.

In order to meet the ever growing seriousness of agriculture's plight, farmers must organize and stay organized, just as industries do, for farming is also a business and an industry—the greatest in the country.

The following extracts from the inagural address of the Governor of Iowa, relating to conservation, are reproduced through the co-operation of the South Bend Bait Company.

"No state can hope to retain a devoted and happy populace which does not in due measure provide for the preservation of health and beauty in its surroundings.

"Thoughtless encroachments of commerce and private ownership have polluted many of our streams, drained our lakes, and cut off our approach to those natural playgrounds of our people. Our scattered efforts toward conservation need co-ordination under and expertly devised state-wide and continuing program immune to the favoritism of changing political forces.

"To this end, I call the attention of the legislature to the need of a budgeted program extending over a term of years, made by competent experts, to provide the state of Iowa with parks, game refuges, bird havens, fish hatcheries, and recreation areas, based on a complete and extensive survey of the entire state. We are in need of a program toward which all the conservation forces of the state may bend their energies and resources in a co-ordinated effort. Too much money is being wasted in haphazard efforts which benefit a few instead of the whole state.

"Linked up with this subject of a definite program, we should consider that many students of conservation believe a more efficient and economical administration of the state fish and game department could be had through a commission.

"This plan has to recommend it the fact that in the states where it is in operation it has proved successful. The conservationists backing the commission plan are animated by unselfish motives and a keen desire to improve our methods in propagation of fish and game, protection of bird life, and in preventing pollution of the lakes and streams."

California was of this same mind and submitted it to the voters of the last election, but predatory and selfish interests were too powerful and the proposal was killed. Politics, alas, often run adverse to the interests of the people.

THE SAFETY FIRST CAMPAIGN

During 1930 ten states conducted Save-A-Life motor vehicle inspection campaigns. Close to 3,500,000 cars were examined as to brakes, lights, horns, steering mechanism, and the like. More than a million of these had defective brakes, 2,000,000 had unsafe headlights, 219,000 had defective steering, and thousands more had other defects of smaller importance. The faulty equipment was corrected, with the result that during the month in which the campaigns took place and teh month following, most of the states enjoyed a decrease in accidents.

The value of inspections, like the value of laws requiring examination of drivers, is not open to doubt. There is every reason to believe that a large proportion of automobiles using the highways are defective, and that brakes, steering or lights might fail in an emergency.

It may be that the most hopeful sign in the automobile accident firmament at the present is the vast amount of scientific attention being given the problem. The entire nation is observing those states which, in spite of a rising national accident record, are reducing fatalities and injuries. The near future should bring us a long way toward solving the highway accident problem.

Is IT WORTH 4¢ to be a perfect hostess?

Cooking with electricity is like having a maid at practically no additional cost!

You simply prepare the food, place it in the oven, set the automatic time and temperature controls, and relax. When friends arrive for dinner you look your best. You are at ease. Your mind is not burdened about the meal. You have time for a friendly chat before being seated. When the moment arrives for serving the main courses, simply take the food from the oven—hot—and perfectly done.

The electric range of today has faster cooking elements—as fast as you'd want them. As for cost, the electric range is priced about the same as any other good range. And electric cooking is economical. The average sum that our customers pay for electricity for cooking is 1c a meal per person!

So when 4c worth of electricity can help you be a perfect hostess, why not have an electric range?—especially when the cost of electricity is less than the cost of one serving of ice cream.

A small payment down will place the electric range of your choice in your kitchen, ready to use. Come into our office or a dealer's store and see the beautiful new electric ranges.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1931 NUMBER 36

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinty by H. H. Smith and Employees.

But Little Choice

"Well, Mose, I can give you this divorce, but it will cost you $3."

"Three dollars, boss?"

"That's the fee."

"Well, boss, I jes tell ya, I don't be'lieve I wants a divorce. There ain't $3 difference 'tween dem two wimmen."

"So you and your sister are twins?"

"We used to be, but now she's much younger."

Good Coal saves you money. Try Aberdeen.

Crop Time

"How is your vegetable garden getting along?"

"Fine. We had it for lunch yesterday."

Necessary

A teacher in a lower grade was instructing her pupils in the use of the hyphen. Among the examples given by the pupils was the word "bird-cage."

"That's right," encouragingly remarked the teacher. "Now, Paul, tell me why we put a hyphen in 'bird-cage.'"

"It's for the bird to sit on," was the startling rejoinder.

Some Fish

Kind Lady (to boy who was taken out of the water): "Dear me! How did you come to fall in?"

Boy: "I didn't come to fall in; I came to fish."

"This quarter is no good; it won't ring."

"What do you want for two bits, chimes?"

Modern Marriage

"J'love this Jane?"

"Yep, your honor."

"This your bimbo, girlie?"

"You said a mouthful, Judge."

"S'nuff. Now he's your'n. Your his'n. Ten bucks, and take the air on the right. Next."

He: "Wish that I could revise the alphabet."

She: "What for?"

He: "So's to put U and I close together."

Don't gamble with the weather man. Be sure your roof is in good repair.
